8/3/2022

Dallas, Texas – One year after a crane accident led to the in-field amputation of 49-year-old Eddie Garcia's legs above-the-knee, Garcia walked out of Hanger Clinic in Dallas standing tall on two new prosthetic legs. Thanks to the dedicated care of his local clinical team, including Danica Nordstrom, CPO and Kendra Krupp, Garcia is not only back to fishing with his grandson and working out in the gym, he's made incredible progress towards his goal to return to his nearly 30-year career as a crane operator.

At a recent prosthetic follow-up appointment at Hanger Clinic, Garcia was joined by a team of supporters, including Nordstrom, Krupp, his TNT Crane & Rigging colleagues, and Dr. Lindsay Davault, the surgeon who saved his life by amputating his legs in an Oklahoma quarry last July, after Garcia had been trapped beneath a crane for nearly four hours.

Dallas media covered the appointment, reporting on how Garcia's incredible determination and positive attitude have propelled him forward. Watch one of the stories here:
